Food For Thought

What Are Your Holiday Stressors?

The holidays are certainly a time of celebration, comfort, and joy, but most of us will indeed experience a little stress along the way. According to a survey conducted by the Consumer Reports National Research Center, here's what stresses Americans out the most during the holidays:

- Crowds and long lines
- Gaining weight
- Getting into debt
- Gift shopping
- Traveling
- Seeing certain relatives
- Seasonal music
- Disappointing gifts
- Having to attend holiday parties or events
- Having to be nice
- Holiday tipping

If the only holiday spirit you're feeling is a skyrocketing blood pressure, remember to take a break (even if it's just 10-15 minutes) from the madness every day. Take a refreshing walk, focus on deep breathing, or connect with a good friend. If you're taking steps to take care of yourself you'll be better equipped to enjoy the season.

*“Holidays are about experiences and people, and tuning into what you feel like doing at that moment.
Enjoy not having to look at a watch.”*
